City Council held a public hearing on March 23, 2020, and approved the first reading of this ordinance revision unanimously (7-0).

Smaller lots are growing in popularity with both builders and real estate consumers. The R-1A-6.6 zoning district requires single-family detached residential lots be no smaller than 60 feet in width. The ZH-A zoning district is currently the only district in New Braunfels that allows lots with smaller widths: minimum 40 feet. 50 and 55-foot wide lots have grown in popularity; however, if a developer would like to subdivide into anything smaller than 60 feet in width, they must request either ZH-A, or a Planned Development (PD).

While lots larger than 40 feet in width are allowed in ZH-A, this district also allows garden/patio (zero lot line) homes, which often prompts opposition by surrounding property owners. PDs include a lengthy entitlement process constituting two separate sets of hearings before the Planning Commission for consideration of Concept and Detail Plans. This process is costly and time-consuming. Therefore, it became apparent that zoning districts allowing minimum lot widths between 40 and 60 feet are needed in New Braunfels, but that do not allow zero lot line homes.

These proposed code revisions are anticipated to facilitate more opportunities for workforce housing through reduced unit costs per lot.

COMMITTEE RECOMMENDATION:

City Council and the Planning Commission discussed this topic at their 2019 joint workshop, and the City Council/Planning Commission ad hoc group also discussed it in 2019, with a recommendation that staff proceed with ordinance development. Planning Commission held a public hearing on March 3, 2020 and recommended approval unanimously (7-0-0, Commissioners Gibson and Tubbs absent).

STAFF RECOMMENDATION:

Staff recommends approval. This proposed new zoning district will allow smaller minimum lot sizes creating development flexibility.
